D.O.C. Dão

The D.O.C. Dão region (named after the Dão river) is one of the oldest Wine Regions of Portugal, located in central Portugal in a mountainous region ranging from 400 to 700 m above sea level. This region has its reference point at the mountain “Serra da Estrela”, the highest in mainland Portugal’s. The wines are strongly influenced by granitic soils and the forests with pines, eucalyptus and oak trees surrounding the vineyards.
